

We create better energy efficiency and comfort. Together.

At Huntsman Polyurethanes, we believe that working in true collaboration with customers is the only way to solve complex problems and find the solutions that will deliver real innovation.

So, we strive with a passion and determination to build the deep understanding of our customers that's required to get to the heart of their needs and establish lasting partnerships.

When it comes to creating better energy efficiency and comfort in residential and commercial buildings, MDI-based polyurethane foam is one of the most effective thermal insulants available. It typically provides the highest energy efficiency, leading to the lowest building energy costs. We've developed a broad range of raw materials that deliver high quality MDI polyurethane insulation systems that are consistent, robust and easy to process. Combine our knowledge of polyurethanes with your expertise, and we'll create better insulation... together.
